

the photographer uses the rule of three to help compose this image.

The man in the centre of the picture fits inside the middle section of the grid, this makes the man the most interesting part of the photo.

The horizon line of the skyscrapers in the background, fit the top part of the grid.

The skyscrapers in the background perfectly fits the top centre segment of the photo.

The usage of colors is slightly bleak, using ordinary colors to portray an urban scene.

The fire extinguisher is part of the bottom right point in the grid, this also adds depth to the scene, in contrast to the buildings in the background,